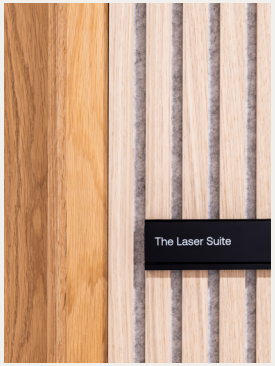
Where Clinical Excellence Meets Boutique Hospitality Design

LaserVision, a specialist eye surgery and consultancy based in Portsmouth, required a healthcare fit-out that was not only functional but also aesthetically pleasing. AxisHouse was chosen to provide expertise in the healthcare fit-out space and create a boutique hospitality feel in the reception and waiting areas.

The fit-out included two state-of-the-art theatres for surgeries that were CQC approved, anaesthetic recovery pods, and several consultancy pods. AxisHouse worked closely with LaserVision throughout the design process to achieve a high-end medical facility that provided the best standard of care and enhanced user experience for patients.

Patient well-being was a top priority, and therefore, a top-of-the-range specification was required for the fit-out. Back-up power supplies, overhead lights, and specialist ventilation were all installed to create the best possible theatre rooms. Other technologies were also of a top-quality standard.

During the fit-out process, AxisHouse maintained an open line of communication with LaserVision and worked in partnership to ensure the end product was exactly what the client had envisioned. Now fully functional, LaserVision provides excellent customer service that revolves entirely around the patients and helps thousands of clients improve their eyesight.



"The team has been brilliant. We've really enjoyed the process and everything has run like clockwork."
